Accused Killer

agents showed up at the Farm Labor office and showed Mrs. Grant a picture of the man they were seeking. Mrs. Grant, who lives at a winter street and who was working in the office her first season, said she did not recognize the picture of a man in prison attire, with a number.
Through careful questioning, the agents learned there had been a large man in that he had been in prison, and that she would be waiting.

The agents proceeded to the farm where they questioned Mrs. Rhoda and assured themselves that the man called Botolino was indeed the Peter Ladetto they were seeking.

ARMED WHEN CAPTURED
FBI agents and State Police set up the road block in which Ladetto was captured. He was being driven by Mr. Rhoda to his sleeping quarters, following supper, and although armed with a pistol, offered no resistance to the equally armed police officers.
Ladetto, a native from Walpole State Prison in Massachusetts, was believed to have been trying to make his way into Canada to avoid prosecution for murder.

but we're going to take it and fight back hard.
"I will support this in every way I can. 'Operation Bootstrap' is worthy of support from all of us. It is a road back to prosperity."

$60 MILLION DEBT

Commenting on the present situation, Dean Wuthrop C. Libby of the University of Maine warned "people don't know how critical our situation is. The total debt structure is $60 million, which averages out to a debt of $100 for every acre now growing potatoes. We face widespread liquidations."

Mr. Libby praised "Operation Bootstrap" as a plan of "initiative and imagination," and said the University of Maine would do all it can to support it.
Making note of the support being given "Operation Bootstrap" by the business and financial leaders present, Mr. L. Newdick, commissioner of Agriculture, said "I have been waiting in years for this day to come. Let's get out a good pack and see if they'll pay for it."

B & A IS READY
Howard Cousins of the Bangor and Arundel Railroad, seconded Mr. Stetson. "Our tracks are here. If the potato business goes out of business, so do we—and we don't intend to."

James Pierce, president of the First National Bank of Houlton, suggested a law which would prevent cut potatoes from being shipped out-of-state. "Our problem over the years," said the veteran Pierce, "is that we couldn't keep quality up."

The bridegroom's father attended his son as best man.

Ushers were Phillip Gallo of Alexandria, Va., brother of the bride, and Lionel Lord of Old Town, a cousin of the bride. The bride's mother wore a lace and chiffon dress of wedgewood blue, and the bridegroom's mother a beige lace dress. Both wore corsages of pink carnations.

Highlights In Sports

by Larry Reece

The Houlton Fish and Game Club released their pheasants last week within a six-mile radius of Houlton.

This brought forth different opinions from many of the local bird hunters. One opinion expressed was that members of the club know where these birds have been released and when the season rolls around will probably shoot them off. This is not sound reasoning because last week we were informed that most of the birds had been released by only two of the club members, Pat Swallow, club dentist and Eddie Lewis who was in charge of the program.

Club members this year dug down into their own pockets to keep these birds a little longer in feed.

Members of the club who are releasing them while they are still in the feed provided enough feed.

This all brings to mind the fact that this writer included down in the regional news column to who should hunt the pheasants. After all, the members paid their money to feed the birds and also helped to raise them.

The State sent over 500 birds into Houlton last weekend and these were also released by Swallow and Lewis in different fields around the Houlton area.

The local club had nothing to do with the raising of these birds as the State equals the amount this year that the Houlton club raises. Many of the Houlton members won't know where the birds are even though they are members of the club. This year, if anyone gets a pheasant during the season which opens next month they should be thanking members of the local club.

REGIONAL MEET
The hill and daleys from Houlton High School under the expert guidance of coach Clyde Stinson, will compete in the regional meet this year at the University of Maine in Orono Friday, October 18.

Other top cross country teams from Arundel are expected to enter. Houlton has won four straight meets this season against Caribou, Presque Isle, Ashland and last Friday won the triangular meet against Ashland and Lee Academy at Community park.

The Houlton harriers have two meets beside this regional meet at Orono. They will host the runners from Fort Fairfield October 19 and will close out their regular season against Presque Isle here on the following Tuesday, October 22.

HORSE GROOMS
In last week's column we mentioned that the racing fans at Rockingham Raceway in New Hampshire were treated to a heated club house and the only ones that had to brave the chilly weather there were the drivers and horses. We'll see certainly get a quick reply to this piece of news from one of our loyal readers who called to inform us that he has been a horse groom for a number of years at a different race tracks and he was never treated with any heated pad docks (where the grooms stay with the horses before the race starts).

This reader is so right. We are truly sorry that the grooms weren't mentioned last week in this column, as they are just as important in the sport of harness racing as the horse. It's these fellows who clean the harness, care for the horses when they get hurt or sick, feed them and see that they get the best of care.

Many of these grooms even train their horses and the only time the drivers get behind the cart is before the race starts. These grooms are really the unsung heroes of harness racing.

SHORT SPORTS
My Express, driven by Alvin "Red" Brewer, a former Houlton teamster, won the tenth race at Rockingham Raceway Friday night and rewarded his backers $25.80 for their two dollar win dual.

Widower Phillip, the classy pacer owned by the Graves Brothers of Mars Hill, Presque Isle and Caribou, won the ninth race Saturday night at Rockingham and gave his backers $19.20 for their investment. Word comes from Woodstock's Island Park that they plan to race this Friday night and next Tuesday night. Rumors are that they will try and get an extension for another couple of weeks if the weather doesn't get too cold.

Ray Cunliffe, chairman of the men's bowling league at the Dux Club, said their season will open Monday night, October 14. Ken Paradis got his bowling eye in shape last week at the local Bowling Center when he hit the pins for a smashing 178 string.

The First National Bank Little Leaguers were treated last week by their sponsor to a supper at the Unitarian Church. After the supper a trophy was presented to the team and their two fine coaches, Leo Ireland and John Rowe, by president of the National League Adrian Bishop. Francis Pierce represented the First National Bank during the evening, which saw team members and their parents enjoying the party. All guests of the First National Bank.

Expect great things from Chevrolet again-for '64

Today...Jet-smooth Luxury '64-CHEVROLET

'64 Chevrolet Impala Sport Sedan—one of 15 Jet-smooth luxury Chevrolets

Chevrolet was luxurious before, but you should see it now. With smart new styling, the '64 Chevrolet looks even longer (but isn't). There's even a whole new series this year—the Impala Super Sports—with front bucket seats as standard equipment. (The new Impalas and Bel Airs are more luxurious, too. Even the lowest priced Biscaynes have new foam-cushioned seats front and rear and are fully carpeted.) Of course, you expect more than just luxury from Chevrolet. A choice of 16 power teams, for instance—a 6 and six V8's up to 425 hp (optional at extra cost). And quieter transmissions. Jet-smooth ride with Full Coil suspension. Flush-and-dry rocker panels, Delcotron generator, self-adjusting brakes and other low-keep features. If you've ever wondered how luxurious Chevrolet could get—with all the extra-cost options there are to choose from—that seems to be entirely up to you.

Take your first look at the first CHEVELLE!

CHEVELLE! by Chevrolet

New Chevelle Malibu Super Sport Coupe—one of 11 models in three great series.

You've never seen anything like this totally new line of cars before. Chevelle is new in everything but Chevrolet quality. Chevelle is a good foot shorter than the big cars, so it parks easily. Yet the interior dimensions of its Body by Fisher provide a generous amount of head, leg and shoulder room. (Chevelle's trunk is big and roomy, too.) The ride is surprisingly smooth with a rugged coil spring at all four wheels. And not so surprisingly for Chevrolet, the new Chevelle offers a choice of engines ranging from an economical 120-hp 6 to a 220-hp V8 (optional at extra cost.) Choose the Chevelle you like best from the three series—the Malibu Super Sport, the Malibu and the 300 Series, eleven models in all—at your Chevrolet dealer's. (Like this good-looking Malibu Super Sport, maybe?)

The Rev. A. S. Arseneau performed the double ring ceremony. Vases of white gladioli decorated the church altar. Mrs. Donna Mullen, organist, played traditional wedding marches and accompanied Mrs. Ramona York who sang "Ave Maria" and "Mother At Thy Feet Is Kneeling".

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was attired in a floor length gown of white brocade tulle with bouffant skirt, and basque bodice with boat neckline. The long sleeves ended in traditional bridal points. The gown was made by her sister-in-law, Mrs. Robert Tweedie.

Her full fingertip veil of bridal illusion was attached to a crown of aurora borealis. She carried a white missal centered with a corsage of American Beauty rosebuds tied with white satin streamers.

Her attendants were Mrs. Gary Dyer, a sister, as matron of honor, and Mrs. James Tweedie, Mrs. Robert Tweedie, sister-in-law, and Miss Jane Burnham of Bridgewater.

All wore street length dresses of pastel pink chiffon over taffeta. The bridesmaids wore pink crowns with matching veils. They carried cascade bouquets of deep pink gladioli.

Robert D. Tweedie, brother of the bride, served as best man. Ushers were Blake Buck of Mapleton, brother of the bridegroom, Gary Dyer, brother-in-law of the bride, and Ralph Griffin of Mapleton.

A reception was held following the ceremony at the Westfield Consolidated School.

White wedding bells, turquoise and white streamers and seasonal flowers were used for decorations which were in charge of Mrs. Willard Ricker, grandmother of the bridegroom, and Johnnie Hoffes both of Mapleton.

Juniors Fare Well At University's Summer Session

ORONO — The 41 Maine high school juniors who studied at the recently-completed University of Maine Summer Session complete an enviable record.

Grades assembled by James Harmon, director of admission for the State University, shows that the juniors were well in many instances better than regular collegians.

The 27 girls enrolled took total of 47 courses with A's being earned in eight courses, B's in 23, C's in 15 and a D reported in only one course.

The 14 boys did just as well Mr. Harmon said. A's were earned in nine courses, B's in 14 and C's in three, he said.

The juniors studied regular college courses, including mathematics, speech, zoology, history, Spanish, German, and physics.

The 41 attended the university upon the recommendation of the high school principals. Their appearance marked the second time that such a program was conducted by the university. The initial program was held in 1962 and achieved an equal degree of success.

Among those who attended were Alice Dupuis, Barbara Newton and Stephen Barton of Houlton, and Mary Ellen Fifield of Danforth.

The Voice Of The Retailer

The Maine potato growers have been the target of attacks from many quarters. The language has varied, but the theme is the same.

The latest verbal barrage at the growers has come from Malcolm McCabe, secretary of the Massachusetts Retail Grocers Association, and a man whose word carries influence among members of his association. He represents the customer, and his appeal to the growers to ship quality potatoes in a steady flow to the market is the same that has been heard, and apparently unanswered, for some time.

This is the way Mr. McCabe stated his case:

"Maine potato growers are among the smartest growers in the country when it comes to raising potatoes, but they are lousy marketers and are missing the boat entirely because they have their noses in the dirt and their brains in the deep-freeze."

"Sure they have problems. They had to get out of Green Mountains and Cobblers because of a disease factor and turn to Katahdin varieties. They look good and grow like the dickens, but simply don't measure up to the former varieties and competing varieties in taste.

"Another problem is the crap-shooting futures market which trades only in Maine potatoes. The result is that in place of steady flow at fair prices you always have a gang of the boys holding back for the high dollar and then trying to unload."

"Look, fellows, all we want is finely-sized potatoes in neat consumer packages during the entire marketing season. This way you will have a chance to compete with the lower freight rates down below you in this region. Get those centralized packing houses a'crackin' now."

Those are pretty harsh words. Mr. McCabe pulled no punches as he restated what many persons very close to the potato industry believe to be the basic faults within the industry today.

And like so many others, Mr. McCabe and his Massachusetts retailers are helpless to do much more than talk. Any changes that may be forthcoming will still have to come from within the potato industry, starting with the individual potato grower.

Seasonal Note

(Christian Science Monitor)

It's strange how we forget about seasons in the summer. Not the summer season, of course — but that there are any others. We resist even the advertisers' attempts to remind us that a fur coat bought in August will be twice as useful in November, or that an oil furnace in the hands of the repair man is worth two with the bushings worn.

But then comes September, and there is an end to the silliness of things. We believe in the color-photo previews that show piles of orange-colored squashes (or is it that oranges are squash-colored?) sentinelled by cornstalks beside some winding country road, and the red farmhouse looking warm and cozy, settled for a long autumn evening. Yes, we know, October's on the way.

A leaf on the wing is a harbinger of change, and birds on the September wind are getting ready, we guess, to look for other springtimes in other climes. Suddenly we are thinking of seasons, and how they come and go and that there are four of them.

Only the supersensitive receive the message in August, on that first suddenly cool and spicy day about the middle of the month. But they forget it before a week is out — until September.

Bay State Buries Junk Cars

(Bangor Daily News)

We haven't heard much lately about efforts in Maine to get rid of the abandoned cars that mar communities and the countryside. Enforcement officials might get some tips by looking into the progress that is being made in several Massachusetts cities and towns.

The relatively small town of Pembroke, for example, got rid of 40 junked cars in a summertime campaign in which police officials and garage owners worked together. The cars were buried. The city of Brockton is planning a similar campaign during a September Clean-Up Week.

Municipal officials in Massachusetts have been aided by a new state law which provides for fines of $100 to $500 and mandatory suspension of the driver's license of anyone who discards an automobile on either public or private property. Perhaps Maine and its communities do not need any stricter laws than now are on the books. But it would be nice to see an energetic campaign waged to get the rusting auto carcasses out of sight.

Country Flavor

There comes a day in middle or late September when mellow, golden beauty rests like a benediction on fields and meadows. The soft light and a pale blue, cloudless sky blend with the greens and amber-browns of the countryside. Wherever one goes he sees a tinge of gold.

Golden Days

If the meadows are still green and the fields covered with rowen, the slanting rays of the ninth month sun change the green to green-gold. As one looks at the grasses, he is sure that the Master Alchemist has passed a magic wand over the landscape.

There are shades of gold in the ripe goldenrod spikes. Down in the swales and swamps, slender leaves of the cattails gleam with a rich gold-brown hue. If the atmospheric haze is favorable, one can see many shades of gold in the needle leaves of pines, spruces, firs and tamaracks.

A golden day is a rich experience in living. There is no movement of air to stir the foliage or bend the amber-hued grasses on the pasture hillside. Apples hang like jewels on the branches and red tomatoes gleam in the garden.

There are only a few golden days in the interlude while Summer slides into Autumn. We know the voices of change are tuning up in the north-land, and that soon chill, sharp-edged winds will sandpaper the land. But when a golden day comes, it is good for a man to walk his acres and drink of the beauty that satisfies a deep thirst.

YES, YOU!

Washington Highlights

By Ray Vernon

It is difficult to see any "dark horse" emerging in next year's Presidential campaign and so those who engage in the art of political prognostication must content themselves with a mere handful of probable starters.

The only contest, of course, will be among the Republicans since there is no question President Kennedy will seek a second term.

Johnson To Stay

There are, however, some wishful Democrats (to the delight of the Republican party) who say the Kennedy brothers will dump Lyndon Johnson and seek a Vice Presidential candidate from some other part of the country. This is so much hokum and will come to naught.

As for the Republicans the only contest we see is between Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York and Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona. If we seem to dismiss without equivocation the candidacies of Gov. George Romney of Michigan and Gov. William Scranton of Pennsylvania it was so intended. We had not even considered mentioning former Vice President Richard Nixon but since his name still pops up in some circles we dismiss him even more unequivocally.

The divorce and remarriage of Nelson Rockefeller has been debated at such length it would add nothing to this commentary to dwell on it at this stage. There are enough other issues on which one can make up his mind between Rockefeller and Goldwater.

Some political "pros" in the Republican party have adopted the view — a misguided view we are convinced — that Goldwater is out of the question for the Presidential nomination since his appeal is concentrated largely in the South and only here and there in the Middle West.

It is our feeling, though, that the Goldwater popularity is beginning to surface and this will be brought out in some of the weather-vane primary elections early in 1964 which the senator is certain to enter.

Another criticism of Goldwater is that he is too conservative. Without question he is a conservative but one must ask: "too conservative" for whom?

In this same connection it has been said Rockefeller is "too liberal" and thus would have no appeal to Democratic conservatives who would gladly bolt the party for the right Republican candidate.

If we read the signs correctly the tide may be changing in this country and the conservative is not out of place at all. The rough sledding which President Kennedy's liberal programs have been experiencing in Congress tell a large part of this story of the change that is taking place.

Racial Unrest

There seems to be little doubt it will have cost him the South at the polls. Racial unrest which has swept the Nation, and we refer to areas outside of the South, spell deep trouble for Mr. Kennedy. In these parts of the country voters previously have regarded Civil Rights as a Southern problem, one which they could look at from afar. But now it has been brought to their doorsteps.

And it goes well beyond that. The white, non-South homeowner sees the largest investment of his life in jeopardy. The union man, already a victim of automation in practically every industry, sees his job in danger under the Administration's drive for equal opportunity for the Negro.

These people have only one way to fight back and that is at the polls.

On Cuba Mr. Goldwater has been outspoken. While he has not denounced Civil Rights he has not elected to travel the same road as the President or the Governor of New York.

We see Senator Goldwater as the Republican standard bearer in 1964. If President Kennedy is to be uneaten Goldwater is the only one who can do it.

Goldwater Offers Change

Certainly it follows that if this thesis is accurate the voter who is seeking change will go where change is most likely. That would be Goldwater; not Rockefeller.

Regardless of which one is the Republican nominee it will be an uphill fight all the way and for many reasons, not the least of which is that John F. Kennedy is already in the White House.

Mr. Kennedy, however, is vulnerable on two scores. One is Cuba and the other is Civil Rights. In 1960, when he was

Weekly Letter from Augusta

Special From The Enterprise

AUGUSTA — The power to see ourselves as others see us, celebrated by the poet Burns, is offered occasionally in comments by out-of-staters who come to Maine and then go home to tell people what they saw. Sometimes this is a pretty tough experience for Maine people, and we get in a sweat over it.

Best example of this was when Toynbee, the historian, said our happy acres were inhabited by fishermen and woodmen, and the late Robert P. T. Coffin (who made a penny celebrating Maine fishermen and woodmen) rose in wrath and said we were inhabited by nothing of the sort. Usually this is precisely what happens — we get a chance to look at ourselves, and then refuse to see what we see. There is none so blind, etc.

Maine scene, but in vogue elsewhere. He pens a personal column, built around his own perceptions and feelings, and deals in things he thinks are important.

To be specific, it is very important to people in Maine that Mr. Humphrey go home to write something nice about us, because we are a state that cultivates the visitor, and we say, "Hi, Friend!"

Well, after all, the governor and the DED have spent considerable money bringing correspondents to Maine. We have entertained rather lavishly, in a way, hoping writers would like us and go home to say so. Some of these characters brought in here have been much less important, potentially, to us than Mr. Humphrey. He is a grassroots chap, depending on his folksy approach and not on the weight of the big paper and the remote authority of a foreign correspondent. And Mr. Humphrey didn't come here under any official program — he was on his own and he owes us nothing.

Mr. Humphrey went back to New York state and wrote his column. Maine people, he said, are poor, and live in relative squalor. They survive in shacks

Typical Visitor

Well, this summer an observant and articulate gentleman, by the name of Win Humphrey of East Windham, N.Y., made a little vacation trip into Maine. He is typical of a certain segment of American journalism, not quite so common to our

So This Is New York

By North Callahan

This writing business — if it can be called a business — is strictly limited, according to a recent survey. It is said that there are only about 250 people in the United States whose full-time profession is that of creative writing, and whose sole income is from original books, plays, stories or articles.

This is the conclusion of a study made by Dr. William J. Lord of the University of Illinois. His doctoral dissertation was a survey of members of The Authors League of America and the conclusion is grim: "One writer in 10 derives his sole income from books; less than 1 in 30 derives his sole personal income from free lance magazine writing."

as well as occasional special volumes on such appealing subjects as "The Age of Napoleon" and "The American Heritage Book of Natural Wonders", all colorfully and lavishly illustrated.

These publications are not cheap, are not meant to be. For example, "Horizon," which is termed "A Magazine of the Arts," has been issued bimonthly and the charge, $21 a year. Although the circulation has been considered satisfactory, apparently the price and frequency of the hard-cover, expensively printed publication are both to be lowered, according to an announcement.

The theory evidently is that there are enough discriminating readers, even in this day of smutty novels and punk television, to justify quality publishing. The other end of the scale may be typified by a cute little Gem book, "Signs of our Times" which sells for a dollar.

Any would-be writer who assumes that anything worthwhile is easy is, of course, on the wrong track, as is anyone else who pursues such a myth. Seasoned editors who often look with a jaundiced eye at a young aspirant who wants to write the great American book of all time, are prone to recall what the late Sinclair Lewis said, when he appeared before a class in writing.

News Writers Among Best

Nothing is mentioned, however, about that lively corps of newspaper writers, who, in my opinion, form the best source of great writing. The full-time freelancers who reported their salaries, revealed that those writing books made an average of $1,600 a year, for magazines, $444 a year and plays, $684 annually.

Not everyone connected with writing, publishing and performance are so ready for the poorhouse, however. The stock of book publishing firms, for example, is now listed on the big exchanges, some of it apparently is profitable, and many mergers of those companies have taken place, mainly, it is said, to affect economies in the high cost of publication.

Rude, But The Truth

The redheaded rebel against society took one hard look at his eager audience, exploded an oath, then added, "If you want to write, then WRITE!" and stalked out of the room. This was hardly polite, but there was a world of truth in his seven words.

All too many people who talk about wanting to write, never get down to it. They read of one of the few successful writers and have an unrealistic dream of the rewards, not taking into consideration the great number of scribes who either fail or achieve at best mediocre success.

There star-gazing hopefuls do not learn how to write, they do not even study the style of their local newspaper, much less read the classics and try to gain therefrom. The foregoing is not meant to be discouraging, just realistic. For there are rewards along the writing trail.

An example of intelligent publishing is that of the venerable firm of Charles Scribner's Sons which has brought out a "Concise Dictionary of American History" which sells for $19.50. While this imposing volume may not bring in a mint of money, at least it has a gold mine of information, containing 2,200 authoritative articles on the "what", "why" and "how" of every major event, social force and trend in the history of the United States.

A recent phenomenon in the field of publishing has been the success of the American Heritage Publishing Company which produces combination book-magazines under the names of "American Heritage" and "Horizon".

Letters To The Editor

Dear Editor:

I am deeply disturbed by the state of our nation today. As an individual, I am writing to as many newspaper editors as possible in an effort to have them publish my views which are as follows:

Increased racial tensions, fiscal irresponsibility, a Communist Cuba, loss of states' right — these are the accomplishments of the liberal New Frontier. I am sick of this kind of "progress", but we will get more of the same by continuing to vote for liberal candidates (example — Kennedy, Rockefeller, Scranton, and Romney) forced on us by the Democratic Party and the liberal minority of the Republican Party. We must have a Conservative in the White House in 1964, or face national chaos and confusion.

The Democratic Party is so thoroughly indoctrinated in liberalism that we must depend on the Republican Party to provide us with an HONEST choice of candidates — not a liberal versus a liberal, but a conservative versus a liberal. I see Barry Goldwater as the ONE man who can fight the New Frontier and win! Apparently I am not alone in that belief. I understand that over sixty thousand (60,000) petitions are being circulated by "Citizens for Goldwater", Valley Forge, Pennsylvania, urging the Republican convention to nominate the Senator for President. This group also provides all kinds of material and helps for organizing local Goldwater groups. I have already sent in my request, and it occurred to me that many of our readers might wish to do so, too.

My conscience simply will not let me sit by and watch my beloved country being torn to shreds by men who have tried to make a dirty word of patriotism and attempted to reduce the meaning of our Constitution to absolutely nothing.

I declare myself here and now as a Southern Democrat for Senator Barry Goldwater, and I intend to see him through to victory!

Thank you for publishing my letter.

Yours truly,
Mrs. M. O. Price

Recipes For Men

Blanche's Crabmeat Company Casserole

There is good reason why this era of culinary history may go down in the records as the Casserole Age. A topflight casserole often combines several good flavors; it is moist enough to be enjoyable. And it is just as good, or even better, when heated up the next day. If there is one thing I cannot abide it is a dry, sawdusty-grained casserole; so when you invite me for supper, please be sure the dish is sufficiently moist.

This dish is a favorite at our buffet parties. Use three six and a half ounce cans of crabmeat, and save the juice. You need two three ounce cans of mushrooms broiled in butter, and again, save the juice. Use three small cans of pimientos and nine stuffed olive sliced.

Blanche's cream sauce for this is half a cup of butter, half a cup of flour and half a teaspoon of salt, one quart of milk and the above juices combined, one half cup cheddar cheese. Cook this until thickened. Soak the mushrooms and pickled tomatoes from crabmeat. Use a two and a half quart greased casserole. Each layer has the crabmeat, sauce, pimientos, mushrooms and olives. Cover with crumbs. This dish serves eight persons.

Buttered crumbs: Three tablespoons butter or margarine melted in a heavy pan and a cup of bread crumbs. Stir crumbs until coated. This dish may be made ahead and put in refrigerator. If this is done, don't put on the crumbs until ready to bake. Bake at 350 about 40 minutes. If stored ahead, bring dish out to reach room temperature before baking.

Health For All

The Big Dunk
That quaint old custom known as the tub bath, or indoor skin diving, seems to be enjoying a revival in certain circles. It's an interesting experience for some of those who grew up in the Shower-bath Age and hitherto have sat down in the tub only after stepping on a cake of soap.

Since some doctors, particularly skin specialists, started having a renewal of interest in the medicated bath, many of their patients have found themselves (literally, not figuratively) in hot water right up to the neck. It tends to relax the nerves while treating whatever is wrong with the skin.

What does the water contain besides the patient? Medicinal baths are being festooned with all sorts of ingredients, from oatmeal to bicarbonate of soda. Starch is a frequent prescription. Oils are sometimes used. It depends, naturally, on the specific ailment being treated.

But whatever goes into the external cocktail, certain reminders about therapeutic bathing can be helpful. For instance, don't settle for the conventional half — or two-thirds-full tub of water. There should be enough to cover the entire body. Don't make that "hot water" too hot — in fact it should be tepid — about 94-98 degrees.

Don't plunge in and hop right out again. 10 to 20 minutes is par for the course in most cases. And pat-dry rather than rub-yourself dry; rubbing is apt to increase skin irritation.

Sitting in a bathtub for 10 to 20 minutes may sound like a dull pastime in this speedy era. But patience can pay off in improved health. Note of caution: baths in plain tepid water for pure relaxation are fine. But if you have a skin condition you want to treat, don't add anything to your bath water unless it's prescribed by a doctor.

Christian Science

"Reality" will be the subject of the Bible Lesson this Sunday at First Church of Christ, Scientist.

A prayer from Psalms (119:18) will be included in the Bible readings: "Open thou mine eyes, that I may behold wondrous things out of thy law."

These lines from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, will also be read: "If the disciple is advancing spiritually, he is striving to enter in. He constantly turns away from material sense, and looks towards the imperishable things of Spirit" (p. 21).

A THREE HOUSE PLANNING BUREAU DESIGN NO. F-538

DESIGN F 538. A small house to provide maximum livability. Its actual floor area is only 1,144 square feet. Note how each of the four bedrooms have carefully placed wardrobe type closets and how the use of higher windows allows at least two or more bed walls in each room. Similar placement of windows is evident in other places. Large glass areas in the living room frame the outside views and admit cheerful light. The roomy kitchen, with its large pleasant dining area, was planned for efficient housekeeping. Economically adjoining the kitchen plumbing and handily located at the rear entry, laundry and coat closet combine into a clean-up area. Direct entry to a full basement and possible play area serves rainy day problems.

The exterior reflects a straight forward simplicity with colorful asphalt shingles, wide horizontal siding and the ever popular planter. Including a full basement the house contains 21,347 cubic feet. For further information about DESIGN F 538, write the Small House Planning Bureau, St. Cloud, Minn. In Canada, the Small House Planning Bureau of Canada, St. John, New Brunswick.

ROUGH WALL

Some people like rough textured walls and are discovering that rough sawn cedar siding brought indoors makes a perfect wall which requires very little maintenance after the first finishing, whether stain is used or some clear plastic covering to retain the natural color of the wood.

FLATTERY

The natural color and pattern of wood is beautiful and often copied. Although imitation is the most sincere form of flattery, most people would prefer natural wood instead of synthetic woods photographed on metals.

Fall Is Ideal Planting Time For Evergreens

Fall is evergreen planting time. Year-round greenness and hardiness to survive New England's cold winters makes yews one of the favorite evergreens with homeowners.

Planting these evergreens early in Fall gives the roots time to adjust to the new location before the winter freeze. Also, they are not subject to hot sun at this time of the year. They should be watered weekly, according to the experts of New England Nurserymen's Assn., till the ground freezes. Be sure to soak thoroughly when watering. Shallow watering can do more harm than good.

Yews come in various forms such as spreading and upright types. They are generally slow growing and can be encouraged to grow densely by annual pruning. They make ideal screens for privacy for patios and backyards, as well as year-round green hedges which require very little attention. Yews are very popular for foundation planting to blend the architectural lines of a home with that of the terrain. Tall yews are usually utilized at corners of the house tapering to smaller sizes under windows.

Yews can grow in sun or shade. They thrive best in well-drained, non-acid soil. In planting, use a mixture of two parts fertile soil and one part humus or compost. All but the very smallest yews should be moved, balled and burlapped.

Your local nurseryman can save you costly mistakes and give you valuable advice on planting this New England favorite.

To make brown sugar moist and lump-free, place a wet paper towel over the dry sugar.

RIVETING MADE EASY — Even a girl can make quick repairs around the house with a new riveting tool now available at local hardware stores. Here's Charity Smith of Boston retatches the hinge that had broken from an ice bucket.

New Riveting Tool Makes Metal Repairing A Snap

SHELTON, Conn. — A do-it-yourself riveting tool that is as simple to operate as a pair of pliers now provides the home handyman and hobbyist with a way of fastening metal parts as easily as wood. The tool also can be used to join plastics, fabric, rubber and other materials to each other or to metal.

Based on a highly successful industrial version that has been employed throughout industry for years, the new riveting tool can be used for everything from repair of toys, appliances, camping equipment, boats, house trailers and cars to the building of ham radio sets, installation of metal rainpipes and gutters, or assembly of other house or workshop projects. It is, for example, ideal for the repair of toys, appliances or garden tools that have broken due to the failure of a weld or the loss of a threaded fastener.

The rivet is set from one side simply by placing the stem in the nosepiece of the tool, inserting the rivet in the hole of the work, and squeezing the handle. The entire operation takes only a few seconds. The rivet pulls up the pieces of the assembly and fastens them tightly and permanently. The joint does not loosen due to vibration or service as screws or bolts often do, and, unlike screws, the holes need not be threaded.

If soft materials such as fabric, plastic sheet or plywood are to be riveted, a small back-up plate, which is supplied with the kit, is used to prevent possible tear-through. Other advantages are that a wide range of thicknesses can be assembled, that the rivet can be set from one side when the back or inside is inaccessible, that joint strength is high, and that no heat is required as with brazing or soldering.

The tool, called the "POP-RIVE" Rivet Tool, is being made by the Fastener Division of United Shoe Machinery Corporation. It is available in retail hardware stores across the country.

According to a USM spokesman, this is the first practical riveting tool ever developed for household use. It also can be employed by commercial users, such as appliance repairmen, home builders, sign manufacturers, marina operators, tool rental and

Tough Roofs Take Today's Rough Wear

It takes a tougher roof today to resist "sunburn" than it did in days gone by. That's why wise home owners specify asphalt shingles that wear the Underwriter's Laboratories label on every package.

A sunburned roof can be as bad for a house as sunburned skin is for you. It looks bad and doesn't do a good job of protecting what's underneath.

Overexposure to the sun, which causes pain and peeling in a person and premature wear in asphalt shingles, is more of a problem than it ever was. One reason is that the low slope of today's roofs results in a more direct assault on the roof from the ultra-violet rays of the sun. Hot winds, beating rain, and hail also do more damage to low slope roofs.

Roofs today also suffer more from cold in winter and heat in summer because houses are better insulated than in former years. Insulation in attic floors or ceiling keeps summer heat right under the roof and in winter the roof remains cold because the insulation prevents house heat from rising.

These extremes of temperature call for higher-quality roofing. Asphalt shingles bearing the UL label meet Underwriter's Laboratories requirements for fire resistance and quality. Shingles that do not have the UL label may look the same but have not been subjected to this rigorous UL testing and inspection.

PRETTY BENCH

Curved benches are easy to build. First build the desired frame of sturdy Douglas fir 2x4s, then use one-by-three inch strips laid on edge with quarter inch spacing to form the seat. You can bend these 1x3s to any desired shape.

NEVER ALIKE

No two pieces of lumber are ever exactly alike, which is why a paneled wall of west coast hemlock for instance has so much charm and individuality.

repair businesses and building maintenance personnel, among others. A two-month market test in representative stores throughout the Midwest indicated that many people bought it for business as well as for repair and construction around the house. Others had a specific application in mind, like a college professor who bought it to assemble theatrical props, a butcher who used it to repair a meat case and a fisherman who repaired a bait box and installed side curtains on his jeep.

Late Mowing Keeps Your Lawn Healthy

If you shy away from that last mowing of your lawn for the season, you may be headed for trouble.

Tall grass mats down during the winter and is one of the causes of snow mold, a common fungus disease in New England.

In Spring you will find the diseased areas of your lawn white, cottony and matted. This fungus thrives during the winter under the cool moistness of melting snow, according to New England Nurserymen's Assn.

If you have been bothered by snow mold in the past, use a mercury fungicide to help reduce and eliminate this condition.

Other measures suggested include making sure that the lawn is closely mowed for the winter, provide adequate drainage and avoid nitrogenous fertilizers.

Pirate Party On Halloween Is Designed For Boys Only

At Halloween time, or celebrating a fall birthday, this Pirate Party is a treasure of an idea for proving that boys and parties do mix! Relax, Mother — there's no fuss to this party.

Cover the table with plain brown paper — as the buccannery gather, hand each a felt marker and in no time the party tablecloth is converted to a treasure map, complete with an "X" to mark the spot.

When it comes time to eat (and most pirates think that's all the time!) try...

Jolly Roger Cups

Stock up on regular ice cream cups from a local store. Cover them with construction paper, if you like, and decorate with simple pirate drawings — a ship, or skull-and-crossbones will do fine. Store the cups in the freezer to wait for party time.

At the party, ask each boy to make his own symbol on a paper flag. Attach it to a large toothpick or straw, and at the table, each boy's "Jolly Roger" flag flies from his ice cream cup, to mark his place.

Plunder Punch

The perfect pirate's beverage, this is made from milk, chocolate syrup, and peanut butter! To each eight-ounce glass of milk, add two tablespoons chocolate syrup and one tablespoon creamy peanut butter. Blend thoroughly. Makes one serving.

For entertainment you may want to use the classic Treasure Hunt with hidden clues. Or a popular variation, called "Cowboy Treasure Hunt", provides great fun. To each party favor, attach a ball of string. Before the party, hide the favors, and unwind the string from each, taking it around the house or yard, over and under obstacles, and preferably getting the many strings tangled in cobweb fashion several times (knots are not fair!). String ends are left free — each pirate must take an end and follow it to his prize without breaking or cutting the string.

Another fun game is "Walk The Plank". This should be performed by barefoot pirates, outdoors or on a waterproofed surface. Put down a plank with a wide, shallow pan of water at the end. Each pirate, in turn, is blindfolded. He must walk the plank and jump over the pan of water. When he begins at the far end of the plank, the water is quietly removed. The rest of the crew will enjoy his antics as he tries to get over the missing pan. When this has been done to several blindfolded victims, and all are convinced the water will be there, quietly leave the water in place the next time, and let the next man step into it!

A pirate party, with no fuss and frills, can be a boy's idea of heaven! Mother's, too — from eat-in's to decorations, everything is easy to prepare and easy to clean up. Try this before a Halloween raiding party — or to celebrate a birthday in real boy style.

Faith is a built-in shock absorber — it helps ease people over the jolts and hard places on the highway of life.

State Asks First Bids On Interstate North Of Orono

The State Highway Commission will open bids October 9 for the first Interstate grading project to be awarded north of Orono.

The contract calls for grading, drainage and gravel base from Route 16, Old Town extending north four miles to the Alton-Argyle Road. The work also includes the construction of a 95-foot steel and concrete span over Birch Stream midway along the project.

The completed freeway from Orono to Houlton will consist essentially of two lanes with a 24-foot bituminous concrete pavement and 10-foot macadam shoulders. There will be a transition, however, to a four-lane divided highway in the vicinity of interchanges. This will allow for the future construction of two more lanes at such time as the volume of traffic warrants the addition. Right of way of sufficient width to accommodate four lanes will be acquired for the entire length from Orono to Houlton.

The first section of freeway to be ready for traffic north of Orono will be the 6.7 miles from Stillwater Avenue to Route 16. This portion is expected to be completed by 1965. Later in 1965, the remaining 17 miles from Route 16 to Route 155, Houlton is expected to be operational. The entire 110 miles from Orono to Houlton is scheduled to be ready for traffic in 1968.

Spend all your time settling old accounts and it's next to impossible to get square with the world.
